Dear Dr. Elliott:

Mr. Jackson has asked me to thank you for your letter of January 9th and express his regret in not having seen you when you were in Washington. Actually, your letter was received after you had presumably returned to Cambridge.

I am sure that Mr. Jackson would like to see you on your next visit to Washington.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. William H. Jackson, Deputy Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Bill: (if I may call you that)

I am afraid that the note I sent you with the enclosure was somewhat of a form one. Of course I fully appreciate that you cannot meddle in policy matters in the CIA. The enclosure was simply for your information and interest. I should have written you a separate note.

I am coming down on a matter for the Department of State on the 10th and 11th of this month, and would like to look in on you for a few minutes on the 11th if you are free. Could you leave word at either Colonel Taylor's office or Frank Wagner's, through your secretary? I suggest Thursday afternoon as the most convenient time for me if it is possible for you.

Sincerely yours,

W. Y. Elliott
